

Environment

The Sydney Desalination Plant was built with a strong focus on the environment.

One third of our site is a dedicated conservation zone that is home to several species of native flora and fauna, including grey-headed flying foxes.

We've teamed up with our friends at Symbio Wildlife Park on important projects aimed at preserving endangered Australian wildlife.

We've grown hundreds of eucalyptus trees here on our site to feed orphaned and rescued koalas, while our creek bed and other natural waterways have become a new home for the endangered green and golden bell frog.

Did you know?

Our Plant is 100% powered by renewable energy.

Find out more about our environmental conservation work here.